Headline:
Fine, dry, and very warm conditions set to continue.

Today:
Any early low cloud or fog will soon clear through the morning, leaving another fine and dry day with plenty of sunshine. Some fair-weather clouds will bubble up during the afternoon. Feeling very warm, hot in places. Maximum temperature 29 deg C (84 deg F).

Tonight:
Staying dry overnight, with most seeing clear skies throughout. Easternmost areas will see some low cloud through the early hours, with hill fog over the Pennines. Feeling warm. Minimum temperature 14 deg C (57 deg F).

Wednesday:
Low cloud and fog clear through the morning, with plenty of sunshine to follow. Some fair-weather clouds and the odd, very isolated shower may develop later. Feeling hot again. Maximum temperature 29 deg C (84 deg F).

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
Fine and largely dry conditions will continue through this period with plenty of sunshine and some isolated showers. Turning cloudier on Friday and Saturday. Feeling very warm with light winds.
